Harvest Queen Pageant

Social Media Clause

A good reputation is precious, both in your public and your private life. As a representative of The Hillsborough County Fair, it is important to maintain an image that reflects the values and ethics of the Hillsborough County Fair organization. The Hillsborough County Fair believes in upholding the wholesome, fun, family traditions that are rooted in the rich history of the Fair. Consider yourself an extension of this image, which means your social media and behavior must reflect this.

We respect your right to social media; however, it is important for our Queens to exercise sound judgement in setting appropriate boundaries between their personal and public online behavior. It must also be understood that what we believe is “private” on social media, can often become public with neither our knowledge or consent. For these purposes, “social media” includes, but is not limited to; Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, Snapchat, Tumblr, and other web based social platforms.

The Hillsborough County Fair, Harvest Queen Pageant, reserves the right to review the social media of all contestants. We also reserve the right to monitor the activity of all Queens during their reign. If we feel that the content of her profiles is in any way inappropriate, inflammatory, or in conflict with the values and standards of the fair, she may be asked to remove such content. If further disciplinary action is required, she may be asked to step down. We feel this is vital to the standards of the fair, as well as a valuable life lesson for future education, employment, etc.

By signing you agree to abide by the decisions of the Pageant Committee and that such decisions will be final.
